GRACE AND CORNELIUS

THE VANDERBILT-WILSON WEDDING TAKES PLACE IN NEW YORK,

Third Marriage Among Vanderbilts Unattended by the Members of that Family of Millionaires.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.-After the wedding been once postponed, the wedding presents received, great banquet prepared, $10,000 of floral decorations furnished and then given to the hospital, trousseau completed and all other arrangements made, with society in a flutter of gossip for weeks, young Cornelius Vanderbilt and Miss Grace Wilson were quietly married at noon today at the Wilson residence, No. 5M Fifth avenue, this city. Assistant Rector William H. Pott, of St. Thomas's Church, officiated, There were present Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wilson, the parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Orme Wilson, Robert Goelet, jr., R. T. Wilson, jr., brother of the bride, and Frank Polk, of Boston, who acted as test man. The Vanderbilt family was not young Vanderbilt at Yale.

Miss Wilson entered the rear drawing room, in which the ceremony took place, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. There were no bridesmaids. The drawing room was decorated with cut flowers. The ceremony was simple and brief. There was no music and no wedding breakfast. The bridal gown was of pure white material with a lace cape. The bridal veil was of old lace and reached to the bottom of the gown. The bride wore in her hair a diamond wreath, surrounded by orange blossoms. After the wedding congratulatory cablegrams were received from the Prince of Wales, the Earl and Countess of Pembroke and the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough. The latter is a cousin of the

Mr. Vanderbilt's present to the bride was a brooch containing thirty diamonds surrounding a large sapphire. His present to the best man, Mr. Polk, was a pin of pearls. When the bride and bridegroom left the

Wilson mansion, the former was attired in a traveling dress of blue silk, covered with lace filigree. She wore white gloves with broad black stripes, a straw hat, prettily trimmed with pink flowers. She carried in her hand a bunch of ferns and small white Both she and Mr. Vanderbilt looked radiantly happy and smiled at each other broadly as he assisted her into the carriage. As she seated herself her eyes fell on a group of the family servants at one of the basement windows of her father's home. She smiled at them, nodded good-bye and threw them a kiss. As the carriage was rolling away she threw a parting kiss to her father, who was watching her from one of the parlor windows. THE HONEYMOON.

It was ascertained that Mr. Vanderbilt's valet had procured tickets for the couple for Saratoga, where a portion of the honeymoon will be spent. There were no invitations to the wedding issued, but the E. McCollough, S. O. Pickens, J. L. Keach, sent out announcing the marriage. A single carriage stood in front of the Wilson residence during the ceremony in which the bridal couple was conveyed to

The story of the courtship of Miss Grace Wilson and Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., is of interest. The couple met for practically the first time last August at Newport. During the next two months, according to the friends of Miss Wilson, Mr. Vanderbilt, who was madly in love, paid her the most assiduous and unremitting attention. The others say that a dead set was made at him from the start. In either case Mr. Vanderbilt and Miss Wilson were constantly in each other's company. Young Mr. anderbilt was sent to Hot Springs, Col. in the late autumn, to get rid of some of the rheumatic trouble engendered by the dampness of the Newport climate. Within a few days Miss Wilson reached the Springs, properly chaperoned, of course. It was after the return of Mr. Vanderbilt and Miss Grace Wilson from Hot-Springs that Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt called in New York on Mrs. Wilson, and asked for a straightforward reply as to tion be held here. whether Miss Wilson was going abroad for the winter or not. After the assurance company with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Goelet. The four Cornelius Vanderbilts, two present and two past, are now being thoroughly canvassed, very naturally. Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, the head of the house, is the source of supply for any number of anecdotes as an original character. as well as the most successful man of his day. Cornelius Vanderbilt II was the eldest son. He made what is termed an "unfortunate marriage." It was without the consent of his father, who disinherited him. The lawsuit which followed the demise of Cornelius Vanderbilt I can be easily recalled by many. Some sum of money, $1,000,000, it is said, was given him by the chief heir of heirs, and the affair was so settled. Cornelius Vanderbilt II sent their son across the ocean, as he desired, for a year's travel. Within three weeks Miss Wilson was off to Europe, in Cornellus Vanderbilt IV is the second son of Cornelius Vanderbilt III. His personality and characteristics are of more interest now than ever heretofore. He is wo, of slender, boyish build, rather dark as to complexion, and very dark as to hair. When younger he had a Chinese look about him. At Yale Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., was marked, so to speak, as the heir in the hereafter of a fortune expected to reach $400,000,000. Then, too, his father had built there the splendid memorial building of the university, which does honto the memory of the late William H. Vanderbilt, the eldest son..

NOT A FAVORITE AT YALE. Cornelius Vanderbilt was not at all a favorite at the college; just the opposite of the eldest son, of whom everyone was fond. He is regarded as purse-proud, and well aware of the fact that he is a Vanderbilt. With this he is said to assume an air of gentleness and diffidence, which recalls the lines relative to the fact that | ciples shall not perish for lack of efficient "the devil grinned, for his darling sin is the pride that apes humility." This gentle manner prevails only at times, for Cor- | be strongly inclined to accept its decision, nelius Vanderbilt, jr., is regarded as very surly as to manner as a rule.

He dresses fairly well, as he could hardhelp doing with the best tailors and haberdashers at his beck and call, but not particularly. He is a fairly good rider, but not a crack polo player, as has been stated. As far as he has already gone now he is a good yachtsman. His two most intids or chums are Frank Harrison, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Harrison, and young Pollock. Young Cornelius Vanderbilt is the quintessence of quietude, actually having nothing to say. He is, of course, too young yet to have anything of the man of the world There is a wide range of opinion as to the age of Miss Wilson. Her friends here generally place her as about twenty-seven years old. Others recall her as a big girl, ready to be brought forward when her sister, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, was married twenty years ago. Rather fortunately as to this, she was never regularly introduced, but drifted into society years ago. She is to-day a fine, bright woman of the world. far and away personally superior to the coveted bridegroom. She is a good conver-sationalist, which is her strong point. This is the natural result of a good early education, followed by years of foreign travel, under the most advantageous circum-stances, and the habit of mixing in society abroad, as well as here. She speaks French and German well, and is a fair musician.

That is to say, she plays on the piano as well as the average woman. This marriage is the third in the Vanderbilt family without the presence of the Vanderbilts, save one, within a compara-tively brief period. The first of these was that of Miss Alice Shepard, daughter of Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard, sister of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, with that nice young multo-millionaire, David Hennen Morris. The second was that of Cousuelo Vanderblit and the Duke of Marlborough. It will be recalled that the latter insisted on having his bride escorted up the aisle by her father, William K. Vanderbilt. As no seat was allotted to the latter, he did not wait for the ceremony, but passed out of St. Thomas's Church by a side door. Apropos to the four Corneliuses is the fact that this combination of letters seems fateful in the family, as the big marriage has been made by "Consuelo.

TO BE A LARGE MEETING

Mr. Polk was a classmate of HOTEL QUARTERS BEING ENGAGED FOR FRIDAY'S GATHERING.

> Sessions at the Commercial Club-Fix ing of Place for Convention Last Business to Come Up.

Evans Woollen held another conference with W. D. Bynum yesterday relative to the meeting of the National Democratic sound-money committee Friday. Instead of at the Denison Hotel, the committee will meet in the assembly room of the club at 2 p. m. Mr. Woollen has a list of provisional committeemen who have been selected in the different States to attend the meeting. He is sending them copies of Indianapolis papers showing what accommodations can be offered and writing them personal letters, urging that Indianapolis be selected as the place for holding the convention. Until the committee meets Friday, but little remains to be done towards securing the convention. The Commercial Club is prepared to show that the hotels can accommodate all delegates, representatives of the press and others offithat all expenses will be paid out of the fund which has been pledged. It has been believed for a week past that Indianapolis will be selected without doubt. Albert Lieber, chairman of the committee on assemblages, and Secretary

Woollen have selected the following wellknown business and professional men to appear before the national committee: Justus C. Adams, president of the Board of Trade: Charles W. Fairbanks, John A. Finch, W. C. Bobbs, M. A. Downing (president of the Board of Public Works), J. P. Frenzel, W. D. Bynum, J. L. Griffiths, J. ex-Attorney-General A. G. Smith, ex-Mayors Thomas L. Sullivan, C. S. At the meeting of the Board of Trade covernors last night, upon the motion of George G. Taner, President J. C. Adams appointed a committee to co-operate with the Commercial Club committee. George G. l'anner, chairman; R. O. Hawkins, O. N. Frenzel, I. S. Gordon and J. E. McGettigan constitute the committee. The joint committee will meet at the Commercial Club Friday afternoon and escort members of the national committee about the city in carriages. It is probable that the principal hotels and Tominson Hall will be visited, in order that an idea what the city has to offer can be shown to the committee. It is presumed that the question of selecting the place for holding the national convention will be the last thing considered. President Adams informed the governors last night that he tel-

MIGHT SUPPORT A GOLD DEM. Bourke Cockran Supplements

First Radical Interview. NEW YORK, Aug. 3 .- The Hon. Bourke

Cockran, when asked to-day if he would support a third ticket if one were nominated, notwithstanding the views expressed in his interview published to-day, said: "If a convention be held, at which all Democrats can be represented, who, believing that the party has been betrayed at Chicago, are determined that its prinorganization, and if a free interchange of opinion be had among its members, I should whatever it might be. I think it more important that the Democratic opponents of Mr. Bryan should be united in one movement than that any particular form of coopposition should be adopted." "By the way," said Mr. Cockran, "in the comments on my interview published this morning. I notice a singular misapprehension on the part of some newspapers. It is assumed that the plan suggested by me contemplated merely the assembling of a convention which would adopt a genuinely Democratic platform, nominate McKinley electors, and stop there. When I said that Democrats, meeting in such a convention as I suggested, while nominating McKinley lectors, would provide for a really Demo cratic opposition to the McKinley adminisration during the period of its existence, thought it would be clear that I meant a substantial and effective opposition. Such an opposition could find an expression no where but in Congress, and it could therefore be maintained only by bringing those Democrats who, in face of treason and cowardice, remain unyielding and unterrified, into a new organization which would nominate candidates for State officers, for Congress and for the State Legislature in every State where the existing organization had denounced the ancient creed of the party by indorsing the Populistic platcandidate. Every Democrat who refuses to support the Chicago platform regards the defeat of the absyrd propositions for which Mr. Bryan stands as the paramount issue of the campaign, and since the simplest and most effective method of ac-Kinley electors. I believe in following that In a contest of this character believe the people would prefer a direct to an indirect method of expressing their abporrence of communism, populism and anarchy. With Mr. Bryan and his socialistic programme disposed of, opposition to Mc Kinley and McKinleyism would become the disposed of, opposition to Mcduty of the Demecratic party. No organition which had indersed Bryan could er after be considered Democratic. If we

the so-called regular organizations join the the populistic forces.
"These are my individual views, and have seen no reason to medify them; nevertheless. I have no doubt that if a representative Democratic convention be assembled, whatever course it may decide to adopt, will prove to be the wisest and best method of dealing with this crisis." Iowa Gold Dems. DES MOINES, Ia., Aug 3.-The goldstandard Democrats will meet here in State convention to-morrow, and are beginning to assemble. Colonel L. M. Martin, of Marshaltown, in whose name the call was issued, arrived to-day. He stated that the call was issued on short notice, and only a few of the leaders were expected to attend. He said various plans had been suggested, but none decided upon. They propose, however, to keep a gold-standard Democratic organization in the Four Delegates from Vermont. MONTPELIER, Vt., Aug. 3.-Leading Democrats from all over the State who represent the gold-standard sentiment are here to-night preparing for the State convention which meets to-morrow. ## BANK PRESIDENT CRAFTS.

The Columbus (0.) Financier Found Dead in Bed at Pittsburg.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.-A private telegram to-day from Pittsburg says Walter Crafts was found dead in bed in a hotel this morning in this city. He is president of the Commercial National Bank, of Columbus. C. D. Fireston, of the Columbus Buggy Company, which failed on Saturday, is a director and a small stocknolder in the bank, Cashier Albery, when asked whether it was a case of suicide, said marks of violence were not found nor was there any evidence of a drug having been taken. Mr. Crafts' standing in Columbus for uprightness was unsurpassed. The report of his death is heard with profound regret and great public interest. The bank officers say that the buggy company had only $10,000 of the bank's money, hence the theory of suicide is scouted. A dispatch from Pittsburg says: Mr. Crafts was found dead in bed in the Monon-

Suicide by Strychnine.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 3.-Elva Waldron, aged fifteen, who had been making her home with Mrs. A. M. Patterson, who resides in the northern portion of Tippecanoe county, died Sunday night from the effects of strychnine poison, self-administered. The girl was an orphan, and originally came from the orphan asylum'at Terre Haute. She was not of the most amiable disposition at times, and Mrs. Patterson was about to return her to Terre Haute, as she feared she could not manage her. Sunday the child went to church, and asked for permission to go at night. Mrs. Patterson suggested that she had better not do this, as it was not always best to be out at night and the girl went to her room. Soon after cries were heard, and the child was found in paroxysms. She the Democrats and independent voters in said she had taken poison and begged to be saved. Doctors were hurriedly summoned, but, as the family lived in the country, the girl was dead before a physician could reach her. The poison had been placed, as was supposed, in a safe place, and it was not known the girl was aware of its whereabouts. Coroner Yeager held an inquest.

ADJUSTING MINING TROUBLES. President Knight Called to Shelburn

for a Quiet Conference. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

SHELBURN, Ind., Aug. 3.-President Knight, of the Mine Workers' Union, was called here to-day by a special telegram from the miners to explain the situation in regard to other places resuming, as there are so many conflicting rumors affoat the miners seem to be at sea as to what course to pursue. President Knight said this evening that he had advised the men not to interfere with Star City, while he did not approve of the actions of the men there. The output from there was a small item in the market, and when the strike is settled Star City would be forced to pay the price demanded by the organization. When questioned in regard to the Hymera affair as to whether the miners were implicated,

What object would the miners have in the destruction of the plant? Admitting the men were nonunion men, it would be better for the organized miners to allow them to continue work at Hymera than to destroy the plant and throw 150 miners out of employment and force them to go to mines which are idle to take the places of organized miners who are still out." President Knight also stated that the difference at Grant Station had been adjusted satisfactorily to the scale of last year. Miners from Jackson Hill report armed men with Winchester shotguns pa-trolling the railroad from the mine to the company store, and say they were halted just before reaching the mines and asked their business. Should the present condition of affairs still continue it will be a difficult matter to predict the outcome. The Hymera miners decided not to go to work at Star City until the strike is settled. A committee of miners waited on the Currysville miners and requested them to quit work until the strike is settled. The following resolution was unanimously adopted by a motion of Shelburn Miners'

PISGAH CHURCH. It Is Located in Jefferson County, and

the seventy-eighth anniversary of the foundation of the M. E. Church at Pisgah, two miles east of Deputy, Jefferson county, was suitably observed. Rev. D. A. Robertson, who was one of the early members of the "church class," delivered an interesting and entertaining sermon, in which he dwelt at some length upon the historical facts connected with the organization and subsequent life of the "Old Pisgah Organization." The church building was crowded to its utmost capacity. Rev. Robertson read a list of the "class," or church membership of 1818, which included the names of some of the earliest settlers in that section. In the list were the names of Lewis, Robertson, Phillips, Stewart, Whitsitt, noseberry and others. A copy of the contract for the erection of the old log meeting house was read by Samuel Wilson, Mr. Lewis Blake explained to the assemblage that in those days houses of worship were called "meeting houses," and he gave a graphic description of the "log meeting house," describing minutely the construction of the great fire place, which was near ten feet across. It was in this neighborhood that one of the frontier block houses was constructed, where the people congregated for safety when an Indian outbreak was threatened. A brief description of this block house was given by Daniel Whitsitt. Many of the old persons of that vicinity gave brief histories of their early life and recited many of the exciting times through which the earlier settlers had passed. A choir composed of forty or fifty of the oldest citizens sang the old song entitled, "How Tedious the Hour." which a choir of young people responded with "There's Sunshine in My Soul. The Pisgah "class" of the M. E. Church was organized in 1818, and shortly after- latter at the cottage, "Pike's Peak." ward a large log meeting house was crected as a place of worship. Near half a century ago a new brick building was erected and the log structure was discarded. After the building of the Louisville division of the Ohio & Mississippi railway, some of the younger members of the Pisgah church attempted to move the organization to Deputy, a beautiful little village on the rail-tween a bull and a stallion that was fatal to both animals is reported on the farm of Richard Jordan, twelve miles north of here, Saturday. The stallion, on getting loose from his stall, was attacked by a bull in the yard and a fight lasting forty minutes followed. The horse tore big patches of hide from the bull's back with his teeth and with his heels kicked in every rib in his body, leaving scarcely a bone unbroken. The infuriated bull plunged his horns several times full length into the sides of the horse until the bowels protruded and the yard was a mass of gore. The stallion finally obtained the mastery, but both animals died within a few minutes. Mr. Jordan valued them at $1,200.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Aug. 3.-Hamilton county soldiers, a few years ago, by accident, met on one Sabbath afternoon in Harrison's Grove, one mile east of Fisher's Station. They were eating watermelon upon that occasion, when it was proposed that the soldiers be denominated the Watermelon Brigade. Since that time the organization has grown until it is one of the most formidable soldier organizations in the county. Their meeting yesterday was attended by at least 5,000 people, and the greatest interest was manifested by the spectators. An address of welcome was delivered by Commander Caylor, and responded to by a son of a veteran, John Garver. Speeches were made by Senator Boyd, Dr. A. R. Tucker, A. B. Farmer, Concert Every Evening. Hon. Joel Stafford and others. Great applause followed on adjournment of the meeting, when it was announced by John Harrison, the gentleman who owns the grove, that he did not expect to be here much longer, but on account of the gratitude in his heart for soldiers living and soldiers dead he had, by his will, provided that for all time to come the soldiers, their children and all future generations should have the right to occupy and use the grounds for patriotic purposes. Mr. Harrison also announced that he intended spending some of his wealth in improving and beautifying the grounds. The soldiers everywhere in the county are expressing their gratitude toward Mr. Harrison for this generous donation. Mr. Harrison is one of the wealthiest and influential farmers in the county.
